

Over the course of this semester, I completed several assignments to build out my own concept of what an entrepreneurial mindset is. The biggest key takeaway of this entire journey was that the entrepreneurial mindset isn't a single style of thought but rather an amalgamation of thought styles and concepts including choice, vision, opportunities, action, learning, wealth, brand, community, and persistence. This comes after going through the focus 2 assessments and identifying my areas of alignment and what my skills and values are, doing the weekly reflections where I did some observation of how I align with the concepts being covered, and developing my personal vision statement.
